Dear Ms. Matthes:

Your subscription solicitation just arrived in an envelope bearing this notation (actual size) on the outside:

Calling all net geeks...

Ms. Matthes, do you know what a geek is? According to the American Heritage Dictionary a geek is "a carnival performer whose act consists of biting the heads off chickens or snakes".

I'm baffled and utterly appalled. Why on earth would Microsoft choose such a disgusting and offensive term to address a potential or current customer? How dare you!

Please remove my name (individual and corporate) from your mailing lists.

Sincerely,

Conrad Weisert
